City to Sue Two Local Attorneys

Two local attorneys who have declined to buy business licenses face law suits as a result of action taken by the City Council Tuesday night.

The Council voted to institute action to recover the license fees for 1956 from John Fitzgerald and Noren Eaton. The ordinance governing business licenses was revised and broadened at the start of 1955 to cover professional men. The license costs $24 a year.

Mr. Fitzgerald, who has practiced law for 48 years, 19 of them in Sierra Madre, said:

"Let them file suit. I'm going to fight. This requirement is both unconstitutional and discriminatory. I pay the state $17.50 to practice law and I don't think I require a local license."

He added that several attorneys, including City Attorney T. G. Cornyn, practice law here without licenses. Mr. Cornyn's offices are in Arcadia and he pays a license fee in that town.

Mr. Eaton also apparently intends to test the law, but he declined comment as to his reasons until he has access to more complete information regarding the Council's action.

Chamber Gets Letter On Suez

A new canal linking the Mediterranean Sea and the Red Sea was proposed this week in a letter from the president of the Chamber of Commerce in Jerusalem to the Chamber in Sierra Madre.

The letter, written by J. D. Mann, noted that while the Suez Canal has been in the headlines almost continuously for the past few months, little attention has been paid to the fact that there is another link between the Mediterranean and the Red Sea.

Parallel to the Gulf of Suez and east of the Sinai Desert lies the Gulf of Aqaba which borders on four countries, Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Saudi Arabia.

The letter pointed out that a canal could be dug from the northern end of the Gulf of Aqaba to the Mediterranean. An accompanying map illustrated that the canal could be constructed completely within Israel.

The Gulf of Aqaba is 100 miles long and contains two ports at its northern end, Aqaba in Jordan and Eilat in Israel. Near the southern end, where the gulf merges in the Red Sea, are two small islands.

The Egyptians, Mr. Mann said, have erected gun emplacements on the Sinai coast facing the canal "with the sole purpose of preventing ships from sailing freely to and from the Israel port of Eilat."

Local Suicide Donates Body To Research

A Sierra Madre woman, who left her body to medical research, shot herself last week, apparently in despair over failing health.

The body of Mrs. Lynn Marley, 52, of 646½ Highland, was found by Mrs. Ida Cuthbertson and her daughter, Beryl, when the couple came to clean house at 11 a.m. Jan. 16.

Police Officer James C. Heasley said Mrs. Marley had been suffering from a heart ailment for more than 20 years. She was found with a bullet wound in her chest and a .32-caliber revolver on the floor beside her.

A note, also on the floor, said: "Everything of value I have I leave to da and Beryl. Please give my body to medical research."

WORKERS FOR THE Mothers' March of Dimes are getting ready to make their annual appeal Jan. 31 for funds to continue the fight against polio. The one-day appeal is under the direction of Mrs. Rocky Summers, who has been chairman of the Mothers' March for

County Plans CD Siren Test Friday Residents Question Canyon Fill Proposal

Los Angeles City and County, along with many other local jurisdictions in Southern California, will put their civil defense sirens through the usual monthly test at 10 a.m. Friday, according to Henry S. Eaton, coordinator, Region 1, California Disaster Office.

Eaton explained that the monthly siren tests are made to insure that they are maintained in peak working condition and ready for immediate use in event of an emergency.

Col. Richard F. Lynch, director of Civil Defense, City of Los Angeles, said the City will test its 216 two-tone sirens, but only to determine if all sirens are in top working order.

Howard Earl, director, County of Los Angeles Disaster-Civil Defense Authority, pointed out that because of electronic and mechanical complexities of the huge 185 horsepower sirens which are triggered by the Sigalert System, the County will follow its usual test pattern of one minute steady blast, one minute silence and one minute of warbling.

Several Sierra Madreans protested the proposed filling of a canyon on Mt. Wilson Trail at a lengthy session of the City Council Tuesday night.

Melvin L. Bowman, 655 Fairview, has requested permission to fill in approximately 10 acres on his property at the northern end of Mt. Wilson Trail. He presented plans to the Council and said his project would be "completely safe."

Mrs. Gladys Carter, 666 Mt. Wilson Trail, said that Mr. Bowman has no way to bring equipment into the area, since the road is private and is reserved for light traffic only.

SHE ALSO questioned the advisability of removing dirt and brush from the canyon. "For every shovelful of dirt removed," she said, "tons of mud may wash down that canyon during the first rain storm."

Kenneth Cleaver, 671 Mt. Wilson Trail, advised the Council that the question of drainage, proper construction, topography and many other problems will have to be solved before any excavation work is permitted.

City Administrator Lawrence C. Bevington said that the method by which this canyon is filled may well determine how all other canyons in Sierra Madre will be handled in the future.

FOR THAT reason, he urged the City Council to work closely with the Planning Commission, the planning consultant and engineers to study the problem and come up with a proper solution.

The question of the city building a high level reservoir in this area was also discussed, but councilmen said it has nothing to do with Mr. Bowman's request.

The problem will be more fully explored at a meeting Jan. 30 between the Planning Commission, the planning consultant and a representative from the City Council. The session will start at 4 p.m., which will give city leaders time to visit the site of the proposed fill.

IN OTHER action, the Council:

1. Adopted the Uniform Traffic Ordinance, a lengthy bill incorporating all traffic laws and adding a few new ones.

2. Approved the application for a business license by Mama Pete's Day Nursery, which is located at 71 Suffolk and is operated by Mrs. Charles O. Peterson.

3. Discussed the placing of benches on the city parkways. This came as a result of a letter to the editor in The Sierra Madre News from Edward L. Voorhees, who suggested that benches be placed at intervals to permit people, particularly older residents, to rest while walking to and from home.

Councilman Harold Roberts volunteered to develop a program and to determine the cost of benches. He also will contact civic clubs for support.

4. Discussed the cost of the proposed new swimming pool in the water grounds on E. Sierra Madre Blvd. Mr. Bevington said the type of pool the Council had planned would cost at least $88,500, according to the most recent estimates.

The Council will meet again to discuss the swimming pool and other subjects starting at 7:30 Tuesday night.

POSTMASTER CHARLES E. LOUK, right, presents honorary recognition certificate to Lewis C. McClelland, 503 Manzanita, who is retiring after 36 years, eight months and five days in the postal service. For the past 26 years, Mr. McClelland has been tour superintendent of the L.A. Postal Transportation Service. Mr. McClelland, who once saw one of his better friends shot and killed during a mail train holdup, retired with accumulated sick leave of 1,641 hours. Active in Boy Scouts and the Congregational Church here, Mr. McClelland has never been late for work. The certificate came from Postmaster Gen. Arthur Summerfield.

Miss Lulu Moore To Quit Library After 35 Years

Miss Lulu Moore, librarian here for 35 years, will retire next June.

A former resident of Shawnee, Okla., Miss Moore arrived in Sierra Madre in August 35 years ago and started working in the library on the same day.

"The library has been a pleasant place to work," she said, "and I hate to leave. I have no definite plans for the future."

The Library Board is now in the process of selecting Miss Moore's successor.

Police Arrest Two For Church Burglaries

Girl Saved After Fall Of 90 Feet

A hiking trip up Mt. Wilson Trail ended in near tragedy last Saturday when a 13-year-old girl twisted her ankle and tumbled down a 90-foot slope near Camp Ivy.

The girl, Carole Platz, 221 Altern Ave., Arcadia, was treated on the scene by two hikers and a hurried call was put in for the Sierra Madre Rescue Crew.

Responding were Fred and Edward LaLone, Red Shaugra, Herbert Herrick, Howard Miller and Minor Harkness. Carole was carried by litter to Chantry Flats and then rushed to the Sierra Madre Medical Center.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman C. Platz, Carole suffered severe bruises, but escaped serious injury. She is now recovering in her home.

Ike's Mid-East Plan Criticized at Hearing

Criticism of President Eisenhower's request for authority to send U.S. troops to the Middle East and to authorize military and economic programs was voiced by a Sierra Madrean Jan. 15 before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Paul B. Johnson, 720 Skyland Dr., said the President's proposals do "little or nothing" to meet three continuing problems and two current crises.

Mr. Johnson has spent more than five of the past seven years in the Middle East as a volunteer overseas staff member of the American Friends Service Committee, a Quaker organization. Of this period, he has spent about four years directing a small social and technical assistance program in Jordan.

PROBLEMS WHICH should be met, Mr. Johnson testified, are:

1. The necessity for building stable, new social and political institutions.

"We in the United States," he said, "cannot do much to help this process, but any tendency on our part, through economic or political emphasis, to freeze the status quo, can seriously hinder the process."

2. The necessity for recognizing the passing of the era of imperialism and colonialism.

"The West," he explained, "must now fully abandon (its) attitude of superiority, however costly and painful it may be, for it is a legacy of a past century and does not even approximately represent the truth."

3. The necessity for resolving the present bitter contest for leadership within the Arab world. This conflict, he said, cannot be explained as merely a power-contest between Egypt and Iraq, nor as a contest between different forms of government.

"It must be viewed, in the light of the important fact that the West, deliberately and for its own benefit, split the Arab world into manageable pieces after the First World War. This form of . . .

Free Tennis Lessons Planned

The Recreation Department is again offering free tennis instructions for juniors and adults. The boys and girls in the beginners' class are to meet at 10 Saturday mornings, intermediates at 10:45, and advanced at 11:30.

All adults interested in learning tennis or improving their game will meet at the courts at 12:30. All players are requested to wear tennis shoes and bring their racquets.

Instructions will be under the supervision of Mrs. Paul Landwehr and Henry Greger. For further information call ELgin 5-6222 or ELgin 5-0606 after 6 p.m.

Arrest 3 for Drunk Driving

Sierra Madre police arrested three persons this week on charges of drunk driving.

They are Roger William Athens, 48, of 480 Foothill Ave.; Truman P. Byrne, 21, of 235 S. Baldwin, both from Sierra Madre, and Eustaquio G. Santellan, 43, of 500 N. Virginia Ave., Azusa.

Mr. Athens and Mr. Santellan were arrested early Sunday morning, while Mr. Byrne was stopped early Monday. The hearing on the charges will be in Pasadena Municipal Court.

Lions Hear Talk On Red Methods

Robert William Lyon, described as "a mystery guest of the Soviets," spoke before the Sierra Madre Lions Club at the group's meeting last Thursday night.

Mr. Lyon told of his experiences in traveling with a group of 250 young people from Vienna through Czechoslovakia to East Berlin.

A native of Milwaukee, he described Russia's methods of propagandizing the youth of the world. His appearance here was arranged by Paul Lanwehr, a member of the local club.

THE TWO CRISES, he told the committee, concern the Suez Canal and the complex and bitter Arab-Israel dispute.

"All of these problems," he said, "are built-in features of the life of the Middle East in meeting the demands of the 20th Century. All would be present regardless of the issue of possible Communist subversion or attack. Meeting the crisis constructively and making progress toward solution of the problems are the sure ways to eliminate the likelihood of Communism's gaining a foothold in the Middle East."

Other specific criticisms Mr. Johnson made of the President's request included the statement that he does not think Congress should give up its power to declare war by granting that power to the President in advance.

He also said the proposed military assistance program is designed to arm nations of the Middle East against the Soviet Union. This may mean, he said, that the United States may be arming both sides in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

"The United States," he said, "has been temporarily enjoying an enhanced reputation in the Middle East as a result of our recent forthright moves within the United Nations . . . to help stop the military action in the Suez Canal Zone."

"This new reputation may well fall disastrously with seeming proof, in the legislation, that we are preoccupied with a danger which

Teen-Age Youths Admit Four Thefts

Two teen-age boys were arrested by Sierra Madre Police late last Friday and charged with committing four burglaries, including one each in the Catholic and Ascension Churches.

The boys, both from Sierra Madre, were sent to Juvenile Court in Los Angeles and then released in the custody of their parents to await trial. The juvenile offenders are 16 and 17 years of age.

Police Chief Gordon McMillan said the Juvenile Court docket is so crowded that it may be several weeks or even months before the case is heard.

THE YOUTHS admitted burglarizing St. Rita's Church, the Ascension Church, the dental office of Dr. Allan J. Burgess and attempting to pry open the coin box in the telephone booth at Pickett's Service Station.

The first three places were burglarized more than a week ago. At St. Rita's the boys took a partially filled bottle of sacramental wine and attempted to pry open two offering boxes, but were unsuccessful.

At the Church of the Ascension, a large wrought-iron light stand to which was fastened the offering box was stolen. The stand was later recovered, but the offering box had been forced open and an unknown sum of money taken.

IN THE OFFICE of Dr. Burgess, the boys took a typewriter, an adding machine, two staplers, 11 pens and 100 three-cent stamps.

Most of these items were recovered in one of the boys' homes, Chief McMillan said. The police chief said one of the boys has been in difficulty with the police on previous occasions, but that the other youth has no record.

PCC Honors Pat Winchell

Pasadena City College paid its highest tribute to Sierra Madre coed recently in Saxon Auditorium.

Pat Winchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Winchell, 240 S. Canon, was one of 11 students honored by the Order of Distinguished Service for her active role in college functions.

Miss Winchell is a member of the Spartans, the Women's Letter Club and the Women's Athletic Association. She also is WLC treasurer, WAA president, a member of Alpha Gamma Sigma and a winner of the Harbeson Scholarship.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS of the Foothill Community Concert Association discuss plans for the coming concert season, which will start this year in February instead of in April. Because of repairs at Monrovia-Duarte High, the concerts will be at Clifton School in Monrovia. The drive for new members begins Feb. 4, although renewals may be obtained immediately. Build a Better Mouse-Trap

Now comes Leland Marsh with a new way to take a shower!

And we mustn't forget John Curtis who has devised a different method of cooking food, or Warren Jones and George Grijalva who have pooled their talents to brew a better cup of coffee.

Who said that all new inventions are conceived by the scientific talent of large corporations?

Sierra Madreans all, the above named gentlemen have spent many months in perfecting their brain child. And in at least one instance, the device is ready to put on the market.

Mr. Marsh, a Sierra Madre realtor, has invented and obtained a patent for a "non-splash bath head." Simply, the bath head is a perforated ring of either rubber or some other durable material that fits around the neck.

A hose attachment fits to the shower ring. The object is to prevent water from splashing all over the bathroom. Instead of spraying the mirror and ceiling, water courses gently down the back and chest. And, ladies, you're in no danger of getting your hair wet.

A boon to the housewife, this bath head.

Mr. Curtis, also a realtor, has spent most of his life-time developing what he has dubbed a "Steamolator."

The Steamolator is a pressureless cooker, the object of which is to make beef taste like beef, carrots like carrots and cabbage like pate de fois gras. Mr. Curtis assured me it does all these things.

"The Steamolator," he said, "doesn't broil, fry, bake, boil or roast. It steamolates!"

The Steamolator is something like a triple-decked double boiler, or a triple boiler, except that the bottom is larger and food is cooked primarily in steam created by its own inward juices. It could also be a quadruple boiler by adding a fourth section.

Each section above the bottom one has a "floating lid" with holes that let in steam. This steam, according to Mr. Curtis, cooks meat, vegetables and anything else with as little disturbance as possible.

It also cooks them quickly and economically. In fact, you can prepare a complete meal in one Steamolator over one gas jet.

Furthermore, Mr. Curtis beamed, you can use the water in the bottom section as a "delicious stock" for soups and stews.

Mr. Curtis also has patented his invention and is now in the process of having it manufactured. The name is copyrighted, too.

The final invention is the only one I have tried personally. It's called a "Coffee Cone," which describes it exactly.

Developed and marketed by Warren Jones and George Grijalva, the Coffee Cone is a spun aluminum funnel which comes with paper filters.

You simply place a filter in the cone, put in the desired quantity of coffee and add boiling water. The coffee comes out crystal clear and can be made as strong as you like.

But more important, the Coffee Cone makes good coffee.

Who said the age of the small inventor is over?—H.W.E.

'A Lamp Unto Thy Feet'

Lee Shippey asks
What Do You Think?

I'm afraid Col. Gildart isn't going to like this.

Seems to me the best Middle East policy for us would be the one suggested by Dean Acheson. He urged that we stop everything over there until Egypt, Israel, France and England can sit down and draw up an agreement fair to them and to the world, and then proceed with clearing the canal. If we don't do that, we'll be just where we started, except that Dictator Nasser will have won all the tricks, caused all Europe to suffer and the canal and Israel problems will be as unsettled as ever.

In fact, as long as he had Acheson to direct him, Mr. Dulles did pretty well, but once he was on his own he blundered all over the map. Of course he isn't quite on his own. The President decides foreign policy. But in the last four years our foreign policy has done a great deal to lose friends and influence people against us.

HAROLD LAMB, famous author and historian, talked to a club I belong to last week. He has been studying the Middle East nearly 30 years, has been all over it and was moderator of a session on the Middle East at the Huntington-Sheraton Hotel in Pasadena recently which attracted authorities on the Middle East from long distances. I met one from the University of Washington who had come down from Seattle for the conference. The most heartening thing Lamb said at the club was that he thinks there will be no war, because Russia never starts a war except against a comparatively weak foe like Finland. Elsewhere it may encourage fighting, as it did in Spain and by supplying arms as it did in Egypt. But it does its best to keep from getting involved.

THE PRESIDENT says his 72-billion-dollar budget is balanced. His Secretary of Treasury says if we don't cut down on national spending we face a depression "that will make your hair curl." How many young couples do you know whose homes would be gobbled up by mortgage sharks if we had a depression? All over this land millions of couples have bought low-down-payment homes they couldn't carry if their incomes shrank even a little. We needn't get scared, but we do need to think.

BUT LET'S keep smiling, too. Funniest thing I've heard today was about the three young men who couldn't resist the temptation to wolf-whistle at some Scotsmen wearing kilts. It took 20 policemen to stop the fight.

OUR TOWN has lost a remarkable personality in Mrs. Borradale. Ninety years old and blind and deaf, she still had more spirit than most of us ever have. She didn't have to tell us that she sprang from aristocratic stock. Any one of perception realized it on brief acquaintance—and she didn't consider persons of no perception worth worrying about. Her later years would have been tragic for anyone with less faith and courage, but Mrs. Borradale kept right on playing the game of life for all it was worth. It will always be inspiring to remember her.

Reports From Abroad

IRELAND—A good marriage in Ireland may be a question of having a good agent. Approximately 20 per cent of the weddings in Irish villages today are arranged through "match-makers."

"An Sein Duinne," the matrimonial agent, is always a woman. She studies the personalities of the village youths and creates "scientifically sound" matches. By her efforts and guidance, one-fifth of all Irish marriages outside of the cities are contracted in this way.

The village match-maker is either a spinster or a widow, but in no case married. Her income is derived from playing Cupid's role (a pound per marriage, plus tips, festivity invitations before and after weddings, occasional bribes, etc.) combined with a small effort at farming. Her cottage is usually full of cats and surrounded by chickens.

BECAUSE of the importance of her job, she is the village's most respected citizen. No one dares offend her. Becoming a match-maker is accomplished by a variety of tricks. One must eliminate the competition. Strangling another widow's chickens to drive her out of the race is considered fair. No more than one such personality can exist in a village. Sometimes a woman gets this position because her mother had it and she is "knowing in her mother's ways and wisdom."

The village children come to this woman's house frequently to listen to stories about ghosts, spirits and the supernatural. In this way she comes to know the personalities of her flock.

Bribes sometimes come into the business. When love is involved, she may have to be tipped to enable her to see the value of a certain match. Without her OK, the parents and villagers might resist such a union.

IT IS the custom in Ireland for the oldest son or daughter to marry first, and never a younger one "out of turn." Sometimes it is necessary to bribe the match-maker to clear the way for a younger couple who are in love.

Because of this deeply ingrained custom, and the complete faith that people have in the match-maker's wisdom, couples are certain at the time of marriage that they couldn't be better suited.

Irish people claim to have the world's most successful marriages, but since divorce is outlawed it is difficult to accurately determine just how successful they really are. In any case, Irishmen frequently claim that this system is the answer to the marriage problem in the United States.

The rain and snow, with that constant piercing wind from the Appenines, dampened by the sea air, and especially the very low temperature of all interiors in Naples, finally almost finished me off. It happened this way.

One fateful day I spent some three hours in the National Museum, a massive stone building neither heated nor ventilated. It was built in 1586 as an army barracks and still vies with the worst of that kind for discomfort, whether in winter or summer. But it also houses, as the guide books assert, one of the largest and most important collections of antique sculptures and frescoes in the world. I had visited it on former trips to Italy in summer and wanted to do so once more.

The atmosphere inside was heavy and cold and dead, like that of a vast tomb, unsealed after centuries. The attendants inside, who guarded its treasures, seemed not quite adequately protected by many layers of clothing, including winter caps, for I noted some foot-stamping and arm-flailing by one and another. My own armor, from overcoat down, consisted of a woolen muffler, a woolen beret pulled over my ears, and four additional layers of clothing, besides woolen socks, and heavy leather shoes whose soles were protected from the damp stone floor by good New York "rubber." But a little "germ," or whatever, got under it all!

Next morning I was aware that I had taken in that— for me, rare—tenant, sometimes written as "cri" (common respiratory infection). For nearly a month thereafter he made himself so much at home in my physical being that I was not only uncomfortable day and night with the usual symptoms, but took on fever with a loss of energy, body-heat, and finally appetite. Soups and oranges became the only palatable foods, though I continued other items for bulk and energy. Red wine ceased to produce internal heat, and lost its savor. I sought my own remedies for such a condition and applied them.

Meanwhile, I kept up my daily tourist routine—some-what reduced—of sight-seeing, the writing of letters and a picture postcard and diary entries. I was also carrying and reading with avid pleasure the old paperback, 1883 edition (Tauchnitz) or John Addington Symonds "Sketches in Italy." For contrast, I had a daily bout with the Italian newspapers. (To be continued.)

Francis was the first secretary and mainstay of the Exhibits Committee of Friends of the Library and will leave a lot of big and little friends here.

Letters to the Editor Column

Dear Mr. Editor:

In your issue of Jan. 10, Mr. Shippey draws a parallel between the Suez and Panama Canals which does not exist in fact when he says "Britain and France ... moved in as I think we would have if it had been the Panama Canal ..."

Well, I should think so. And so would we if it had been the Erie Canal or the Chesapeake or any other canal that runs through American territory. I am sure Mr. Shippey knows that by the Hay-Bunau-Varilla Treaty the Republic of Panama granted to the United States the use, occupation and control of the strip now known as the Panama Canal Zone, and that the Department of Defense has the responsibility of protecting it from enemy action. I certainly doubt that many of the millions of voters who overwhelmingly gave their preference to Eisenhower would have done so had they for a moment discredited his intentions to protect our territory and property.

The case of the Suez bears no resemblance whatever. Instead of the canal and a zone being owned by Great Britain or France, it has always been a stock company. In fact Great Britain was so short-sighted as to oppose its construction at the outset, but finally got on the bandwagon in 1875 by purchasing a large block of shares from the khedive and owns seven-sixteenths of the company's stock.

It is one of Britain's colossal blunders, ranking with those of George III which indirectly we celebrate every July 4th, that she did not get control of her own life line.

In fact, in 1904, that country agreed that the canal should "always be free and open, in time of war as in time of peace, to every vessel of commerce or of war, without distinction of flag."

On the subject of the President's request of Congress for the authority to use troops, I do not remember that Mr. Eisenhower before election was so foolish as to have talked "as if no American soldier would ever again face a foe on foreign soil" as Mr. Shippey implies. He stood on his record, part of which was a parallel request made in the case of Formosa. On the other hand Mr. Truman, though forewarned, was not forearmed with any constitutional authority in the case of Korea, which developed into a major war. The Constitution provides that only Congress can declare war, and the President wants to be sure that he conducts his office within the highest law of the land.

Forethought would have prevented the ills that now beset the Suez, just as forethought has prevented them in Panama and Formosa. Forethought is what we now see in the President's request. The alternative is to wait with our hands folded until our opponents force a crisis and then illegally and precipitately throw unprepared troops in to stop the fire. And maybe have to fight on home instead of "foreign" soil. Again, I doubt that many of us who voted for Eisenhower would have done so if we had expected him to drift into myopia as a means of keeping the peace.

One more word, this on the matter of business failures, a subject discussed by Mr. Shippey in a previous issue. It is true that failures were up in 1956—by 17%. But new business starts were up in the same period by 14%.

The power to tax is the power to destroy, and I suspect high taxes as the guilty party in the business failure woodpile.

C. R. GILDART.

It was most heartening to hear that President Eisenhower considers the halting of inflation as the most important factor in preserving America's dynamic growth under the free enterprise system.

The President stressed this point at the outset of his State of the Union message, pointing out that government, business and labor must work together to hold down living costs across the nation.

He laid the first responsibility upon government, noting that "through the next four years I shall continue to insist that the executive department and agencies of government search out additional ways to save money and man power. And he urged Congress to be 'equally watchful in this matter.'"

But the President went on to say that business and labor have a major responsibility in this regard—business in preventing unnecessary price increases, and labor in seeing that any wage increases and benefits be coupled with improvements in productivity.

"Freedom," he said, "has been defined as the opportunity for self-discipline. No subject on the domestic scene should more attract the friends of American working men and women of free business enterprise than the forces that threaten a steady depreciation of the value of our money."

LIVING COSTS climbed 3 per cent in the last year. We had been able to hold them almost even for three years, but the cumulative effect of wage increases and the resulting price increases in durable goods broke through our defenses.

If the integrity of the dollar continues to decline, pressures will mount for government to assume greater responsibilities in private fields, as happened during the depression of the Thirties.

wait with our hands folded until our opponents force a crisis and then illegally and precipitately throw unprepared troops in to stop the fire. And maybe have to fight on home instead of "foreign" soil. Again, I doubt that many of us who voted for Eisenhower would have done so if we had expected him to drift into myopia as a means of keeping the peace.

One more word, this on the matter of business failures, a subject discussed by Mr. Shippey in a previous issue. It is true that failures were up in 1956—by 17%. But new business starts were up in the same period by 14%.

The power to tax is the power to destroy, and I suspect high taxes as the guilty party in the business failure woodpile.

This would be entirely opposite to the principles upon which our country was founded and which President Eisenhower outlined in his message. Said he:

"The appeal of these principles is universal, lighting fires in the souls of men everywhere. We shall continue to uphold them against those who deny them and in counseling with our friends."

The President mentioned that he will transmit future messages to Congress recommending, among other things, "the continued efforts to eliminate government competition with the businesses of tax-paying citizens."

This, too, is heartening because it indicates that Congress may be asked to work specifically upon recommendations of the Hoover Bipartisan Commission for streamlining government operations and saving tax money.

At present I am redrafting some of my bills from the last session which call for specific recommendations to go into effect.

ANOTHER HIGHLIGHT of the President's message was his emphasis upon redeveloping the United States Information Agency. Recent trouble in Hungary and the Middle East shows that the voice of truth must be heard more clearly in the battle for men's minds between the free and Communist worlds.

This year I am serving as liaison man between the Advertising Association of the West and such government agencies as the USIA in a program which would augment the effectiveness of our carrying the story of American free enterprise overseas. The President's hope for expanding our information service should help to stimulate this program greatly.

President Eisenhower has already taken account of the Middle East crisis in his historic address of the previous week, when he asked for stand-by authority to use American soldiers. But he did not hesitate to show his concern again, saying:

"The cost of peace is something we must face boldly, fearlessly. Beyond money it involves changes in attitudes, the renunciation of old prejudices, even the sacrificing of some seeming self-interest."

ON THE WHOLE the message was extremely comprehensive. While it lacked the dramatic impact of his Middle East speech, it emphasized a much broader area of responsibility not only of the Congress, but also of the American people.

In previewing much of the legislation that the President will request in subsequent messages, it showed that the 85th Congress will have little time to spend on frills. The session will be far busier than any previous one.

Array of Spectator Events Heads February Calendar

Dogs, dolls and dates ... catfish, carrots and camelias ... tomatoes, gliders and snow—

No place but Southern California could offer such an array of spectator events, as listed in the February calendar issued yesterday by the All-Year Club, the community organization for building the half-billion dollar tourist business for the area.

The National Date Festival combined with the Riverside County Fair will be held Feb. 16-24 at Indio in an Arabian atmosphere, including Arabian Nights Pageant, Slave Girl Mart and daily camel races.

NILAND ("Nile-land") in the Imperial Valley goes Egyptian, because of its similarity to the Nile, and crowns a Queen Cleopatra for the Tomato Festival Feb. 1-3, celebrating its tomato harvest. A derby finds the world's champion tomato-packer.

Also in the Imperial, Holtville celebrates its crop with the Carrot Carnival Feb. 8-10. There will be a parade of carrot floats, contest of carrot recipes, and free ice cream sticks for all.

Temple City makes its annual Camellia Festival Feb. 22-24 uniquely a children's feature. Fresh camellia floats in the parade on the 23rd are limited to 4 by 6 feet and must be built and propelled by children. Camellia king and queen are chosen from the first school grade.

Over 400 varieties of the flower from all over the Southwest will be exhibited at the San Diego Camellia Show in Balboa Park Feb. 16-17.

Between 30 and 35 of the West's best glider pilots compete in the strong thermal currents over the Torrey Pines bluffs at San Diego in the Pacific Coast Midwinter Soaring Championships Feb. 23-24.

WCTU Meeting Next Thursday

Members of the Harter WCTU will meet next Thursday for their regular monthly meeting at 2 p.m. in the home of Mrs. J. A. Hall, 611 W. Grandview.

Also seen enjoying the festivities were Mrs. Vangens' father, Wesley Campbell of Long Beach and Mr. Vangens' brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vangens of Maywood.

Belmont Alumni To Hold Dinner

Members of the Ward Belmont Alumni Association will hold their sixth annual dinner honoring their husbands at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 25 at the Brown Derby Restaurant, 4500 Los Feliz Blvd., Los Angeles.

On the Trails

By Bill Wark

Of all the small inhabitants of Big and Little Santa Anita Canyons, none can compare in charm to the little Water Ouzel. This was also the favorite bird of John Muir, who wrote about the Ouzel so delightfully that we feel it should be quoted in this column.

"Among the countless waterfalls I have met in the course of 10 years of exploration in the Sierra, whether among icy peaks or warm foothills, or in the profound Yosemite canyons of the middle regions, not one was found without its Ouzel."

"No canyon is too cold for this little bird, none too lonely, provided it be rich in falling water. Find a fall, or cascade or rushing rapid anywhere upon a clear stream, and there you will surely find its complementary Ouzel, flitting about in the spray, diving in the foaming eddies, whirling like a leaf among beaten foam bells; ever vigorous and enthusiastic; yet self content and neither seeking or shunning your company."

"If disturbed while dipping about in the margin shallows he either sets off with a rapid whirr to some other feeding ground up or down stream, or alights on some half submerged rock or snag out in the current and immediately begins to nod and curtsy like a wren, turning his head from side to side with many odd, dainty movements that never fail to fix the attention of the observer."

"He is the mountain stream's own darling, the humming bird of the blooming waters, loving rocky ripple slopes and sheets of foam as a bee loves flowers, as the lark loves sunshine and meadows. Among all the mountain birds none has cheered me so much in my lonely wanderings—none so unfailingly. For both in winter and summer he sings—sweetly, cheerily, independent alike of sunshine and of love, requiring no other inspiration than the stream on which he dwells."

"While water sings, so must he in heat or cold, calm or storm, ever attuning his voice in sure accord, low in the drought of summer and the drought of winter, but never silent."

A LAND BIRD, as indicated by unwebbed feet, the Ouzel has adapted itself to an unoccupied, unfrequented niche in nature. The plumage of this fat little bird is so dense and oily that it can fly under water, using the same wing movements as in flying through the air.

He even walks along the bottom of swift streams, dining on the minute insects that live beneath the surface. In flight it follows the windings of streams, never departing from the living water. Its nest is usually located behind a waterfall, so that it must fly through the spray when entering or leaving its home.

The nest itself is made of moss kept fresh and green by the spray of falling water. These nests are very hard to find, as I have learned after spending a good deal of the day sticking my flat nose through countless little waterfalls, and finally achieving success in the quest about half a mile above Sturtevant Falls.

If you love our mountains and spend part of your spare time wandering through the canyons, do not neglect making an acquaintance with this little oddity of the bird world. The little Water Ouzel will add much enjoyment to your mountain travels.

Saturday's Defeat Drops Social Climber Off Top Spot

The Santa Anita Maturity, world's top-ranking classic exclusively for 4-year-olds, has its 10th running at the Arcadia track this Saturday and, with the $20,000 San Carlos Sprint as an added attraction, an outpouring of around 50,000 racing fans is expected to be on hand.

Gates are to open at 11 a.m. with the first race starting at 1 p.m., and post time for The Maturity (to be aired on KNXT (2) and 17 stations on the CBS Coast Network) will be around 4:45 p.m. For early arrivals there will be 12,000 unreserved grandstand seats and a guaranteed supply of reserved seats.

From 933 nominated as yearlings in 1954, 10 are expected to start to make a gross purse of approximately $165,000. The Maturity is the first of Santa Anita's internationally-known racing features being presented this season. The $135,000-guaranteed Big 'Cap is to follow on Feb. 23; the $100,000-added Santa Anita Derby, Mar. 2; and the $100,000-added San Juan Capistrano 'Cap on the turf course, Mar. 9.

Top horse for this year's Maturity was Llangollen Farm's Social Climber, son of the famous Your Host, to be ridden by Eddie Arcaro. The horse dropped in standing, though, since his poor showing Saturday.

He's a Cal-bred striving to be the third to win this classic, Trackmaster having scored last season and Apple Valley in 1954.

Added interest has been added to the race with King

PLANNED REPLICA of the Holy Land at the time of Christ is shown in this artist's sketch. The $20,000,000 project, launched by the American Foundation for Preservation of Christian Heritage, is expected to be built on a 2,000-acre site in Southern California. This area was chosen as the site because of its similarity to the weather and terrain of Palestine.

The exact replica will include the ancient walled city of Jerusalem and the little town of Bethlehem and Nazareth. Construction—which will be under the supervision of Lawrence G. McNeil, who built Disneyland—is expected to start this year.

Square Dance Class Still Open At Field School

Square dance classes, which started this week, will still be open through the next week, the Pasadena Department of Recreation announced.

Classes are held at the cafeteria of the Field School, 3600 Sierra Madre Blvd., 8 to 10 p.m. on Tuesdays for beginners, and on Thursdays for intermediates. The popular caller-instructor team, Orrin and Dorna Benedict, are directing these new groups. Registration may be made ahead of class time. A nominal fee is charged.

Garden Notes . . .

Early Blooming Annuals Should Be Planted Now

It's time now to prepare for spring, reminds the California Association of Nurserymen, and there's no better way to plant for the coming change of season than with early blooming annuals.

A favorite of gardeners throughout California is the Snapdragon (Antirrhinum Majus), a short-lived perennial usually treated as an annual. It blooms in many beautiful colors and shades—pink, rose, salmon, yellow, copper and crimson—and is available in tall (three to four feet), intermediate (15 to 18 inch) and dwarf (six to nine inch) sizes. Plant Snapdragons in rich soil and use this perennial or annual in borders, rock gardens, raised beds and pots. "Snaps" are excellent for cutting, too. Certainly no spring garden would be quite complete without several rows of Fairy Primroses (Primula Malacoides). These dainty plants with their foliage of pale green rosettes and tiny pink, rose, white and lavender flowers will do best in a partially shaded area. They make attractive companions for spring bulbs, too.

Stock (Mathiola) are attractive annuals for garden beds and cut bouquets. They are available in many colors and varieties. Plant Stock in light, well drained soil.

LONG-RANGE economic development, Mr. Johnson testified, is essential, but it should be rigidly divorced from military programs, based upon a system of priorities and carried out within the framework of the United Nations.

"We who are so blessed with freedom," he concluded, "have failed so far to grasp the essential qualities of the nationalism now growing to maturity in the Middle East."

"The simple humanity of a mutual feeling of equality has escaped us amidst the alarms, the crises, the urge to do things bigger, better and faster."

FIRE FLAMES

By James Heasley

Chief Gene Tom's son came running into the house. "Whassa matter?" asked Ma. "I just knocked over the big ladder in the back yard." "That's all right, son," she said. "Just tell Daddy to pick it up."

"But he can't," came the answer, "he's hanging onto the roof."

ONE OF the local firemen was telling about buying his wife a new washing machine for a Christmas present. "Bet she was surprised, eh?" said Jim Cass. "I'll say she was, she was expecting a new car!"

WE ARE entering a new year and we hope we do not have a duplicate of the past one. No fault of the Fire Department, the loss has been the worst in the history of the Fire Department. Good stops were made at each fire. When residents are awakened by the heat and smoke of a fire in the house, it is a little late to avoid considerable damage. However, when as many as 26 firemen respond to a night call, and after getting there, do a good job, there is plenty reason to believe that the men are vitally interested in their work. Fire prevention is the best known way to lower fire losses, so we ask our home owners and residents to take our warnings seriously.

Quick response and getting the fire out in a hurry may not always be the result. Imagine a strong gale in progress when a house or other inflammables are on fire. Only experience can arouse the imagination to the impossible task of stopping fire from reaching major proportions.

THINK FIRE PREVENTION and then practice it. There are many ways of assisting your Fire Department in preventing fires. In addition to the cigarette, there are thousands of other sources of fire. Accumulations of inflammable materials may be the cause that carries the fire to the next house. KEEP THE FIRES OUT.

VILLA
VIEWSBy Toni Maurin
SYcamore 7-9634

I'll tell you, it is hard to depend on anything these days. I write about the wonderful winter weather and before I can turn my back and go to press we've got summer again. It is downright disgusting. I'm going to boycott popcorn and hot chocolate. Maybe that will help. I like winter!

Once more we have inaugurated our President, and I repeat, how fortunate we are to have Washington, D.C., as close as our living rooms. Our children have the opportunity to see history in the making.

MRS. EDWARD HALPERIN and Mrs. E. Marshall Harris gave a luncheon last week at the Halperin home at 1490 Old House Road. Among the guests were Mesdames Peter Tabach, D. B. Gaffney, Neil Fallon, J. Veblen, Richard Tuchscherer, Howard Baker, Hollis Lindstrom, Warren Pruitt and Henry Ascher.

LATER IN THE WEEK Mrs. Halperin had the Drama Section of the Woman's Club up for tea and rehearsal or rehearsal and tea.

MR. JOHN H. BIGGAR of 1085 Mesita Road was elected president of the Tournament of Roses Association last Thursday at the group's 69th annual meeting, held at the Huntington-Sheraton Hotel. He succeeds Mr. John S. Davidson, also of Mesita Road.

MR. AND MRS. RUDOLPH E. Zuebeck, parents of Mrs. George Amthor of 3306 Barhite, returned to San Antonio last week. They were here about five days and plan to take about a week returning home.

MR. AND MRS. ELDON Osburn of 3290 Edgely Lane spent last weekend visiting friends in Barstow.

60 Acts Set
For Finals in Talent Search

Sixty acts will comprise the two semifinal shows in the 22nd annual Search for Talent, co-sponsored by the Pasadena Exchange Club and the Pasadena Department of Recreation.

From these two, 30 acts will be advanced to the finals where the contestants will vie for the Sweepstakes Trophy and Gold and Silver Medals.

The first semifinal will be at Muir High School on Friday, Feb. 1, and the second on Feb. 8, at Marshall Junior High School Auditorium. The finals will complete the contest on Sunday, Feb. 10, at the Civic Auditorium. Audience response will select the Sweepstakes Trophy winner who will have a chance to compete in the state finals, with all expenses paid by the Exchange Club.

So heavy has been the response to the talent quest that auditions for all divisions had to be extended. The senior try-outs begin on Thursday, the 24th, and will continue until all are heard. Contestants who made the semifinals in the Junior and Intermediate Divisions were announced early this week.

It's over! Everyone is glad, I am pretty sure. I am talking about the elections.

The nominating assembly Thursday was really great. All the kids in the skits did a wonderful job of acting.

Bob Blumer

Most of the kids will agree that Linda Jordan got the biggest laugh. Seems she gained some weight for an hour or so.

The theme for the assembly was TV programs and radio speeches. Some of the TV programs were: I Love Lucy; $64,000 Question; Sergeant Bilko; and, of course, it wouldn't be complete without the one and only Mr. Magoo, played by Dick Toohey.

THE RESULTS were announced the sixth period Friday. I was told that there was never such sportsmanship.

The Spring Cabinet is president, Linda Marazzi; vice president, Bob Blumer; secretary, Sheila Donnell; entertainment, Linda Dittberner; publications, Chuck Siegel; safety, Mike Couch; Girls' Acc., Gwen O'Neill; Boys' Acc., Jimmy Gutierrez; 10th counselor, Merrith Mitchell; ninth counselor, Nancy Crimi; eighth counselor, Sue Aubrey; and seventh counselor, Robert Hurt.

TO CELEBRATE, all the kids that ran in the finals and the Fall Cabinet decided to have a party. This was decided at 3:30 Friday. Sue Jordan volunteered her house. She also said she would furnish the extra boys needed. The reason extra boys were needed was that GIRLS seem to be running Wilson.

De Paur Opera
Set for Civic Aud
February 1st

Leonard de Paur, who brought his Infantry Chorus to Pasadena on three separate occasions, will return to Civic Auditorium Friday, Feb. 1, at 8:20 p.m. with his new "Opera Gala" under the auspices of Elmer Wilson, in celebration of the 3,000-seat auditorium's 25th anniversary.

The "Opera Gala" consists of excerpts from three famous Broadway operatic successes, performed by an orchestra and chorus of 50.

The operas are "Four Saints in Three Acts," with its witty libretto by Gertrude Stein and sparkling music by Virgil Thomson; the electric Hammerstein-Bizet "Carmen Jones"; and the American classic, "Porgy and Bess," with book by DuBose Heyward and music by George Gershwin.

Leading roles will be taken by Lawrence Winters, baritone; Inez Matthews, soprano; Luther Saxon, tenor, and George Marshall, baritone.

The Bethany Church of Sierra Madre will have a winter conference soon. It promises to be a lot of fun.

THE KIDS that went to the dance classes, under the direction of Charles Wiedman, were honored to have Gower Champion, the famous dancer, in attendance. He didn't dance for us, but afterwards we all got a chance to talk to him. The classes are held on Monday nights from 7:30 to 9. After the lessons, "Oh, our aching muscles!"

By the way, R.A. has gone back to M.S.

IF ANY of you heard a splash last week it was Dennis DeChico. Yes, Dennis did it again. He dove in 50-degree water when it was raining.

Oh, yes, Dennis and John Ogren were riding on Dennis' cycle. Dennis told John to turn, but of course he didn't. Up the embankment through the ivy they went. Dennis flew off and John went right through the picket fence, still on the cycle. John came to in the bushes and the cycle was still going. Damages amounted to one broken fence and a few minor cuts and bruises. Fun, hey, boys?

THE MARSHALL assembly last week was our orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Skeeters. Those in the Marshall Orchestra are Raya Abbe, Mark Bower, Carolyn Cartmel, Ranelle Dickson, Terrence Dilts, Franklin Eastman, Meredith Gage, Gary Groomer, Donald Hall, Barbara Healy, David Hopper, Dextra Howbert, Arlene Kaprielian, Janelle Koepfel, Charlotte A. Lynn, Gail Milne, Karen Morris, Kathleen Morris, Christopher Olsen, Ruth Palm, Jane Parks, Martha Parks, Charlotte Pavelko, Marlee Persbach, William Peters, Patricia Price, Mayer Resnick, Lorraine Robert, Nancy Shaffer, Margaret Smith, Valerie Starz, Eddie Stevens, Randall Stevenson, Paul Swaim, Susan Thomas, Judith Thompson, David Vilt, John Watts and Raymond Zeuchner. Our hats off to them. They sure did a good job.

ONE THING was rather disconcerting, though. In the middle of the field was a large board with flashing numbers like they have at E. F. Hutton's stock brokerage office down town. I was told this had to do with the odds on the horses and showed the amounts bet and for further information to consult the Racing Form and Program which I had thoughtfully purchased. Unfortunately mathematics is not one of my strong points and my calculations proved it. Two out of eight is a grade of 25 and that's not enough to pass even in this day of progressive education.

Out of four hours there was actual racing for a free trial 10 minutes which figures about one out of 24. This I found as the after-

Aspirin Can Have Drastic Results on Small Children

By Roy O. Gilbert, M.D.
Los Angeles County Health Officer

Unknowningly, many parents are selling their children short. While doing everything possible to protect them against the common diseases of childhood they nevertheless unwittingly expose them to a cause of death that is of deep concern to physicians, namely, chemical poisoning.

Poisoning is not the chief cause of accidental death among children. Death by motor vehicles, falls, impact injuries and burns rank ahead of it, but all of these are more or less difficult for the parent to control by anticipatory measures. Accidental poisoning, however, is one field of danger that can be practically eliminated if parents will only take a few simple precautions.

A recent study in Boston showed that of all accidental poisoning cases, 84 per cent occurred in children 1 to 4 years of age. It is in this period that the youngster is eagerly exploring the world of sight, feeling and taste, but still lacks sufficient experience to possess caution.

IT IS TRUE that modern educational concepts encourage parents to permit children the full play of their exploratory inclinations. The idea is a good one if the environment for exploration is first made safe, and it is certainly the responsibility of adults to make it so.

It may surprise some parents to know that each of the following common household items was reported as the cause of death at least once in a recent study of 484 fatal accidental poisonings among children: aspirin, barbiturates, cosmetics (including perfumes), benzene, bleaches, kerosene, insecticides, rodenticides and mouse seeds. This list is by no means exhaustive.

Unfortunately, in most households many of these items, or others of a like nature, are kept under the kitchen sink, in open cabinets, on low shelves, or in places of equal accessibility to children. Nearly all toddlers, and even many youngsters who can only crawl, will be able to hold themselves up long enough to reach for objects on low tables, stands or dressers.

ASPIRIN, that valuable compound which is found in nearly all home medicine cabinets as well as in the purses of most women, is a chief offender as a cause of poisoning among children. As a matter of fact, parents should be cautious in the administration of aspirin to children, since the young seem specially susceptible to salicylate intoxication. For instance, one infant died after being dosed by his mother with 20 tablets of aspirin during a 48-hour period.

The colored, candy-flavored aspirins made especially for the toddler trade are regarded by many physicians as being too dangerous to have around the house. A youngster might decide to explore elsewhere after ingesting an ordinary aspirin or two, but he may be encouraged to complete the job of involuntary suicide if the aspirins are flavored to his liking.

And, it is reported, the removal of a substance from its original container often multiplies its potential danger. Cleaning fluid put in a pop bottle, lye left on a spoon after use, rodenticide placed in an empty tea carton, a household bleach forgotten in a water glass have each caused the death of children in the past.

THE GREAT ADVANCES made in preventive medicine have nearly eliminated the epidemic diseases that were once the scourge of childhood, but the magic of the doctor has no power over accidents such as these. It may well be that a reduction in the accident toll among preschool children will be far more difficult to achieve than was the control of the diseases which formerly struck them down.
